

This part of site contains informations for visitors from 'eduroam capable' organizations

The essid eduroam is broadcasted here. Authentication is based on the 802.1x protocol. You need valid user credentials for successful login to the eduroam network. You should obtain these credentials as well as documentation for client device configuration and user support at your home institution.

In case you visit NIMH and have trouble with eduroam connection although your computer is configured properly and it's working at your home institution you can ask our user support for help (directly or via your host person on NIMH)

<https://helpdesk.ad.nudz.cz/servicedesk/customer/portal/1> .

For help with configuration of your computer you can found plenty of valuable information sources online. See the main info portal www.eduroam.org. If you need personal help with settings of your computer please ask user support at your home institution.